Where are they now?

Victoria continued her association with the School, coaching water polo, after she left and graduated from the University of South Australia with a double degree in Human Movement and Health Science alongside Middle and Secondary Education.

During her studies, Victoria lived and worked in the Westminster Girls Boarding House, an experience that gave her a unique insight into school communities, while also representing both South Australia and Australia in water polo at the elite level.

Following graduation, Victoria built her teaching career, working as a casual Physical Education teacher at Saints Girls and Westminster, before securing a full-time teaching position at Prince Alfred College.

In 2021 Victoria relocated to New South Wales with her husband, who serves in the Royal Australian Navy, and for the past five years she has been teaching PDHPE at Queenwood School, Mosman.

Victoria and her husband welcomed their son in 2022.
